FOR IMMEDIATE POLICE HELP CALL 100 TO SHARE INFORMATION CALL 1090

A First Information Report (FIR) is a written document prepared by police organizations in India when they receive about the commission of a cognizable offence. It is generally a complaint lodged with the police by the victim of a cognizable offence or by someone on his or her behalf, but anyone can make such a report either orally or in writing to the police.

For a non cognizable offence a Community Service Register is created & registered.

FIR is an important document because it sets the process of criminal justice in motion. It is only after the FIR is registered in the police station that the police take up investigation of the case. Anyone who knows about the commission of a cognizable offence, including police officers, can file an FIR.

As described in law,

- When information about the commission of a cognizable offence is given orally, the police must write it down.
- The person giving information or making a complaint has a right to demand that the information recorded by the police be read to him or her.
- Once the information has been recorded by the police, it must be signed by the person giving the information.

Evidentiary value of a First Information Report

The statements made to the police are of three categories- a) A statement which has been recorded as an First Information Report (herein after referred to as FIR) b) statement recorded by the police in the course of investigation c) statement recorded by the police but not falling under the above (a) and (b) category.

None of the above statements can be considered as substantive evidence, that is to say, as evidence of facts stated therein. Because it is not made during trial, it is not given on oath, nor is it tested by cross-examination. If the person making any such statement to the police subsequently appears and gives evidence in court at the time of trial, his former statement could, however be used to corroborate or contradict his testimony according to the provisions of the Evidence Act, 1872.

Section 157 of the Evidence Act is as follows:

"In order to corroborate the testimony of a witness, any former statement made by such a witness relating to the same fact, at or about the time when the offence took place, or before any authority legally competent to investigate the fact may be proved."

Further, Section 145 of the Evidence Act provides:

"A witness may be cross-examined as to previous statements made by him in writing or reduced into writing, and relevant to matters in question, without such
